Public Access on the Web

For the purposes of licensing for accessing the Web, "CPU" refers to processor packages and not cores or logical processors. For help in calculating the number of CPUs you have, use this resource.

Supported Public Access Types <sup>7</sup>

Feature	Rio	Avante	United	Team
Concurrent RX + WebLink			★	★
Web Distribution Portal		★
Starter Public Portal: 10 User		★
Standard Public Portal: 25 User	★	★
Midsized Public Portal: 50 User		★
Single Processor Public Portal	★	★
Dual Processor Public Portal	★	★
Multiprocessor Public Portal	★

7. Per Processor must purchase the same number of CPU on LF Server.

All public portal types include WebLink and e-mail. No access type is shared across multiple Laserfiche servers. Web Distribution Portal allows five retrieval users to access the system concurrently with only one security profile. The Public Portal 10, 25 and 50 user types allow for 10, 25, and 50 retrieval users to log in to the system concurrently. There are three types of Public Portal licenses with as many concurrent retrieval users as the processor can handle: Single Processor which is for one CPU per Server, Dual Processor which is for up to two CPUs per Server and Multiprocessor which is for three or more CPUs per Server. If Public Portal is licensed to a Server with more than one repository, users will be able to access all of the repositories on the Server.
